Where did Halloween come from?

In the beginning, Halloween was a harvest festival.

The Celts (who lived in Ireland, the United Kingdom and France) marked the end of the summer and the beginning of winter with this harvest festival.

- They called the festival Samhain (sow-in) and this translated to ‘the end of summer’.
- They believed that the festival would make their gods happy so they would protect them and their crops during the long, hard winter that was to come.
- They wore costumes and enjoyed fortune telling.

They built huge fires, and burned crops and animals as sacrifices.

Where did the name Hallowe'en come from?

When the Celts eventually became Christian, they started to call the first day of November 'All Saints' Day'.

'All Saints' Day' was also called 'All-hallows' which was an old English word.

People began to call the night before the first of November, 'All-hallows Eve' and this eventually became Halloween.

Why do people dress in costumes at Halloween?

- People believed that ghosts walked the streets on Halloween night and they felt scared about meeting them.
- They began to wear masks to fool the ghosts into believing that they were other spirits.
- Soon, people started to wear costumes and fancy dress to go with the masks.

Why do we make jack-o'-lanterns at Hallowe'en?

- There was an old Irish legend about a very mean and sly man called Jack who was always playing tricks on people. When he died, he was not allowed into heaven or hell so he had to walk the Earth from then on. The only thing Jack had to guide him on his way was a hollowed out turnip with a light inside it.
- This is where we get the name 'Jack of the Lantern' which changed to 'jack-o'-lantern'.
- When European settlers arrived in America, they realised that pumpkins would be far easier to carve as they were soft and would give out a brighter orange coloured light, than the turnips.
- Nowadays, most jack-o'-lanterns are carved from pumpkins for this reason.

Why do we go trick or treating at Halloween?

- Many years ago, people were not just afraid of meeting ghosts on Halloween night. They were also terrified that ghosts or spirits would come into their homes.
- They began leaving bowls of food outside their doors to deter the ghosts from entering.
- Over time, people began to get less fearful of the ghosts and started eating the nice treats themselves.
- Some people say that this was the start of trick or treating.
- There are other stories that claim trick or treating started when people started giving cakes in return for prayers being said for their dead relatives on All Soul's Day in England.
- Instead of just getting cakes, children began visiting their neighbours to look for food, drinks and money as well.
